

Lino iPad app

lino is an online stickies service that offers stickies and canvases. You can post, see and peel off stickies on canvases freely. Stickies posted from this iPhone/iPad App can be accessed with PC browsers.

At the FETC Conference I just attended, a speaker used lino during a brainstorming session. We were all able to contribute to her board. It was a really cool app that I can see as very useful in the classroom.

- Take a note right away wherever you are

You can freely post memos, pictures and videos you take with your iPhone, and even files as stickies on a canvas. Stickies posted while you're offline will appear once you're online.

- Take advantage of a multi-touch screen

Zoom in and out a canvas by pinch gesture. Drag a sticky to move it. You can take advantage of a multi-touch screen of your iPhone and iPad.

- Organize your stickies visually

You can move stickies around at any time. Organize your memos and ideas by changing colors of stickies or setting an icon on them.

- Never forget special days or deadlines

Set due dates on your stickies, and you will receive an Email reminder on the morning of the due date. In addition, stickies with due dates can be viewed in Google Calendar or Outlook.

- Make your iPad a photo frame

Layout your pictures and videos of memories on a canvas, and your iPad becomes a photo frame. Once you make the canvas public, you can show the canvas to your friends, your parents and others.

- Share your ideas with texts and pictures lino is an ideal tool to share your ideas and to have a discussion with your friends and colleagues. You can create or configure a group from PC browsers. With iPhone/iPad App, you can post, see, move and peel off stickies.

lino will become more useful if you use it from PC browsers as well as from iPhone/iPad App. Please visit <http://en.linoit.com/>.
