

Microsoft Translator

Microsoft just released an amazing app that will change lives. I have said this only about 3 apps, but this is by far one of the greatest I've seen in a long time. It was introduced at FETC 2020 in January when I was there, before it was even released. Here it is:

Microsoft translator supports 69 languages; it translates live, so that you can have a conversation with someone in two different languages. You speak in the mic of the phone and it translates in audio back. You can then invite someone else to speak. In using your phone, one end is upside down so you can lay the phone down so both people can speak without having to touch phone. Just the mic icon. There is an ios and android app
